

General Information

What are extensions?

Extensions and other individual alterations to the assessment regime will only be considered using the University Special Consideration Policy. Students should carefully read the Special Consideration website, especially the details about what formal documentation is required.

What type of extensions are available?

You can read about all the different type of extensions available on this page.

How can I apply for an extension?

All special consideration requests should be made using the Special Consideration Application (turnaround time ~1 week).

All applications must be submitted before the due date of the assignment. That means, you can't apply for special consideration for Coding Project 1 in week 8! The only exception here are extremely severe cases (like being hospitalised for the entire time) which would require significant evidence.

Staff members are unable to provide you with extensions. All requests must be made via the above platform. Requests made directly to staff via emails or other forms of communication will be declined or ignored.

Does the extension apply to everything?

No, one special consideration application can only cover one item of assessment. You will need to apply for a separate application for every subsequent item.

What if my application is rejected?

The special considerations team's decision is final and cannot be overturned. If you feel like your circumstances warrant it, please apply for special consideration as soon as possible so you can have an outcome before it's too late.

Eligibilities per Assessment

Not all assignments can receive extensions in the same way. In addition to the requirements listed in the links above, our unit also has internal policies about special considerations. Here are some details per assessment item.

Coding Projects

- These assessments are eligible for both short extensions and long extensions.
- Approved cases with a requested due date of 10+ days after the original due date will not necessarily receive an extension. Instead, they will be sent to us and we'll decide how to accommodate case by case. We might give you an alternative assessment in the form of a written test, or a verbal interview. In unlikely cases, we might give an extension on the same assessment. This is the case regardless of how many Special Consideration applications are made and approved - if the ultimate requested due date goes on or after 10 days of the original due date, the unit will make alternative arrangements.

- You cannot request an extension if you have already submitted your work.

Theory Tests

- Each test is offered in 3 different weeks. So generally speaking, special consideration should not be needed since you can just attend another taking of the test.
- You may still apply for special consideration if your circumstances did not allow you to take any of the takings, but that might require substantial evidence.
- If you attend the test, you cannot apply for special consideration.
- No tests can be arranged after Week 14. Try your best to take advantage of the earlier sittings to have W14 as your last backup option.

Workshop Quizzes (in class)

- Short extensions do not apply to the weekly workshop quizzes.
